Murray Olds was the news director, while Murray Wilton was the manager of marketing and promotion. They were thrown together on air in late 2000, for no reason other than they shared the same first name, and they've been together on and off ever since. Miss Jane (Jane Lange) has no qualifications or talents, other than exasperating most people she works with. Somehow, Jane found a job in radio, and worked on 2UE's top-rated George and Paul Show. She made the move to 2GB with George and Paul in 2016 and stayed with the show until it ended in 2019. Jane is now the Accidental Producer of the Two Murrays Show which airs on weekend afternoons in summer on Radio 2GB.

From our table to yours — Family Favourites Recipes is a unique collection of delicious, tried, and tested recipes from the listeners of The Two Murrays radio show, celebrating an Australia of yesteryear that you can enjoy with loved ones today. What started as a discussion on the show quickly grew into this cookbook with the help of scores of listeners who shared their own recipes, photos, and stories, many dating back decades. Wonderful memories are created while cooking and enjoying food around the family dinner table. Re-discover old favourites and try your hand at exciting new meals with the sweet and savoury inspirations of entrees, mains, and desserts in this book. Nicknames Nicknames are fond names. We do not give them to people we dislike.

Edna Fisher

Nicknames are unavoidable. They can range from the common – such as Mike from Michael or Sam from Samantha – to the trendy, funny or downright insulting. As we saw earlier, in Australia there is a trend for parents to use simplified or humored versions of a traditional name as well as shortening names and adding an 'ie' on the end. However, if you decide to stick with a longer name, make sure that you'll be happy with any nicknames that emerge.

You can pre-empt problem nicknames to some extent by saving the name you've chosen out loud and trying to find rhymes for it. This is a clever way to avoid playground chants and nursery rhyme-type insults, such as Andy Pandy or Looey Lou. A word of caution though: it's inevitable that children will find a way to poke fun at literally anything, however carefully you plan, so maybe mothers should worry less about their children's

With the release of the recent State of the Environment report in Australia raising public awareness this book is a must read for anyone who is concerned with these issues. It's important to note this is an Australian book so, whilst global in nature, is very pertinent to our own situation.

Author Bio:

Simon Mustoe has worked all over the world as an ecologist, expeditioner, and conservationist. He's tumbled in boats amid frigid north Atlantic storms, trekked solo into Madagascar's remote dry forests, discovered unknown species of seabird in Australia's tropical ocean territories and recorded previously unseen whales in West Papua. Telling the story about our relationship with and dependence on wildlife is Simon's passion. He co-produced Australia's National Landscapes Nature Series, sends his online magazine Wildiaries to a quarter of a million Australians, and illustrates his own blog, Animal Impact.

I have spent every day as an adult in the company of animals, from shy echidnas to raucous parrots: they are our culture if only you look. We can't exist without wildlife and the time has come to make sure, WITHOUT FAIL, we don't lose them. This book shows how it can be done. - Robyn Williams AO, ABC Science Show

For our very lives, and that of our sustaining planet, depends on we humans nourishing diversity. The Wave

The People Against the Establishment

By Ravlic Tom

Key Sales Points:

* A timely and thoughtful read for anyone interested in a broader look at Australian politics today and the 2022 federal election. It will help readers understand the concerns of the Australian public prior to the election and why the election turned the way it did and offers insight to what's to come in our country. * Edited by investigative journalist Tom Ravlic, this anthology brings together the experienced voices of Peter van Onselen (Contributing Editor at The Australian since 2009 and the Political Editor at Network 10), Stela Todorovic (Political journalist at Network 10) and Barry Jones (Author, What Is To Be Done? Scribe, 2020), with more names to be announced.

Publicity: * National coverage in newspapers including The Australian and Australian Financial Review, Crikey, Banking Day, The Mandarin, ABC National radio, 3AW, 2GB, and more. * Promotion through the contributors' platforms and social media platforms (including Peter van Onselen 186,000 Twitter followers).

The Australian Labor Party returned to power following the 2022 federal election with Anthony Albanese as its leader. How did the Labor machine manage to get back in after almost a decade of conservative government in Canberra? There was no one thing that brought Scott Morrison, then leader of the Liberal Party and the Coalition, down but a range of factors that sent him and his party to the opposition benches. Mishandling vaccine orders and the coronavirus pandemic, a lack of action on equality, a failure to deal with an integrity commission, a tug-of-war over climate change and more spurred on a range of minor parties and independents to press harder. The Australian parliament now has a greater representation of Australian Greens and independents in the form of professional women who had a gutful of their aspirations being ignored.

The Wave: The People Versus The Establishment is a collection of essays and contributions with each piece a mosaic that explains why Australians decided to vote in a manner that not only resulted in regime change but warned establishment political parties that each and every vote cannot be taken for granted ever again.

Author Bio:

Tom Ravlic FIPA has looked at complex issues in business, finance, and politics for a range of publications for almost three decades. He has written extensively on corporate governance, financial crime, scams and rorts as well as national security matters. Previous books authored by Tom include Vulture City, a look at the banking royal commission presided over by Kenneth Hayne, Rorts and Rip-Offs, a consumer-friendly guide for people wishing to dodge the perils of investment, online and other scams, and Crown: Playing in the Shadows.

Still Too Sexy

Fairbrass Fred

Defying Gravity

Mooney Jordan

The image of Jordan with her white shards of beehive and Mondrian make-up is one of the most iconic in pop culture. From the counter of Malcolm McLaren and Vivienne Westwood's taboo-busting shop on 240 King's Road, she helped shape a revolution. But who was the woman behind it all? What happened after she shared so many hair-raising adventures with the Sex Pistols, Adam and his Ants, Derek Jarman and Andy Warhol - and then just disappeared? With commentary from key players and close friends including Vivienne Westwood, Paul Cook, Marco Pirroni, Holly Johnson, and her partner behind the SEX counter, Michael Collins - plus a wealth of never-before-seen images - Jordan reveals her outrageous life story. Music Theory for Self-Taught Musicians

Metz Will

Will Metz's main ambition in his first book, Music Theory for Self-Taught Musicians: Level 1: The Basics, was to define and introduce all the main concepts used in music theory (intervals, chords, scales, modes, etc.). He refers to these notions as "tools" because they are what musicians use to create music. Having a clear understanding of these notions is crucial, but it is only the first step . . . One must then understand how to use these tools and how they are combined and how they interact. More concretely, this book, Music Theory for Self-Taught Musicians: Level 2: Harmony, Composition, and Improvisation goes in depth into the notions of harmony, composition, and improvisation. It answers one of the most common and troubling questions of any musician, that is: What to play in any given musical context? This is what music theory is all about at the end of the day—learning a bunch of relatively complex notions would make no sense if they didn't help to compose and create music.

Under Their Thumb

German Bill

Under Their Thumb: How a Nice Boy from Brooklyn Got Mixed Up with the Rolling Stones (and Lived to Tell About It) tells the story of Bill German's unlikely friendship with the Rolling Stones. He first met them on the streets of New York when he was a seventeen-year-old aspiring journalist. After handing them a copy of his amateur fanzine, they took the author under their wing and hired him as their official historian. They turned his little rag into their official newsletter and advertised it in one of their albums. Soon after, he began traveling the world with them and staying at their homes. German went from being a teenage fan who wanted to know everything about his favourite band to suddenly knowing too much! He was privy to their private jams and recording sessions as well as to their parties, peccadilloes, and in-fights.

Will the Circle Be Unbroken

McEuen John

In 1971 John McEuen was the force behind the gathering of legendary Nashville bluegrass musicians who joined with the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, a Southern California country-rock-jug band to create Will the Circle Be Unbroken, which Rolling Stone magazine declared to be "the most important album to come out of Nashville." This landmark album celebrates its fiftieth year in March 2022, and McEuen tells the story of the making of the album, discusses each of its thirty-eight songs, and includes never-before-seen photos taken by the author and his brother Bill McEuen, who produced the album. After the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band's cover of "Mr. Bojangles" became a surprise hit, McEuen asked Earl Scruggs if he would join the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band on an album.

The Indian Mate Volume 1

By Sareen Divesh

Written by an entrepreneur who is developing a business around the concepts in the book. The story starts with the partition of India through historical and family stories, covers the authors childhood in India, and his journey to and settlement in Australia. The book provides a first-hand account of the difficulties of moving to Australia and making a home in a radically different environment. The author uses his experiences and stories as inspiration for young people who are in the same situation he came from. In the fascinating first volume of The Indian Mate, Divesh has covered the journey of what India went through from the time of independence and partition, recovering from it, the culture, and what it's like to grow up in a middle-class family while going to an upper-class school while trying to work with the best you have got and creating opportunities. He examines what happens when you keep failing but trying, and sometimes remembering he is a young kid, and along the way to starting to dream about Australia as the land of dreams which can change his and his family's financial future within his lifetime. He hopes this book gives the lessons he did not get earlier in his life, to show that its possible if you keep having a go at your goals even if it takes a lifetime.

The Indian Mate Volume 2

By Sareen Divesh

The entertaining and often humorous second volume of this book talks about moving to Australia with a bag full of dreams (his own and his family's) and lot of expectations, where the only option he saw was keeping his head down and running the real marathon of his life. Something he had been preparing for. It also covers the Australian landscape from the eyes of an international student and some reality vs expectations journey, meeting a partner who would stand by him in this race to the finish line, convincing his Indian parents to let him marry a white girl they have never met, going back home after five years after he felt he had achieved something to take them to the next level. Follow Divesh as he worked towards being able to survive and grow in a country he was still getting used to, after he came here with $1000 in his bank to making it possible to save about $150,000 to have the chance for his family to be able to be part of that same dream life that was now true for him. He hopes this book gives the lessons he did not get earlier in his life, to show that its possible if you keep having a go at your goals even if it takes a lifetime. Hopefully he can achieve his goal of at least making one life better and helping youngsters to achieve more.

Between the Listening and the Telling

Yaconelli Mark

Stories tether us to what matters most: our families, our friends, our hearts, our planet, the wondrous mystery of life itself. Yet the stories we've been telling ourselves as a civilization are killing us: Fear is wisdom. Vanity is virtuous. Violence is peace. In the pages of Between the Listening and the Telling, storyteller, author, and activist Mark Yaconelli helps us find and craft the stories worth telling of repair, and justice, and truth, and empathy—leading us into an enchanting meditation on the power of storytelling in our individual and collective lives. Through his work with The Hearth, a storytelling non-profit, Yaconelli has spent thousands of hours listening to people as they grieve loss, deepen friendships, strengthen families, shed light on injustice, and celebrate wonder. By borrowing practices from spiritual communities, such as silence, song, meals, and a moral imperative to serve the greater good, he helps us tap into the sacred power of storytelling.

Creativity

Lohmann Stephensen Jan

A short but engaging exploration of our changing perception of creativity. Creativity was once seen as the mark of mad geniuses, troubled souls, and avant-garde eccentrics. Today, however, we expect to find the trait thriving in and around us. Why? In Creativity, Jan Lohmann Stephensen provides a historical and contemporary view of creativity and explains why it is not always the answer to every problem. From van Gogh to Springsteen, Lohmann Stephensen explores the creative process of artists to craft a new theory of creativity—marking it as a collective and dynamic process in flux, rather than a finished product with a set endpoint and sole creator. Finally, he warns, in the twenty-first century, the importance that employers place on creativity has warped the concept into a ubiquitous economic commodity.

With the right skills, caregivers can navigate changing family roles, communicate better with the elder with dementia, keep them safe, and manage difficult behaviours.

Katoomba and Medlow Bath

Elevation: 1317 metres Population: 8,000

Katoomba is the largest town in the Blue Mountains and, for many people, epitomises what the mountains is all about. There's a sense of grandeur times gone by, with splendid old hotels and faded street fronts, not to mention fine art-deco interiors, all set against the awesome backdrop of sheer cliffs, huge valleys and views stretching out for miles.

The main street itself is full of cafes, vintage clothing stores, second hand books and antiques. Gone are the bright lights of Laura, instead there's a distinctly alternative vibe with backpackers, students, artists and the irreplaceable local residents. There's also a surprising amount going on most weeknights and every weekend you'll find live music at the Station Bar, Aubry Eds and The Clarendon, not to mention other local venues such as The Baroque, the Avalon, the Bank Hotel and The Savoy.

PUBLIC TRANSPORT

Local buses: Local buses leave from opposite the Carrington Hotel, at the top of Katoomba Street (www.wcdobus.com.au, T 131 500).

Tourist buses: Tourist buses with unlimited day passes circuit South Leura and South Katoomba, passing near the beginning of most of the walks in this chapter. Contact Blue Mountains Explorer Bus (www.explorebus.com.au, T 1300 300 985).

From Couch Potato to Endurance Athlete

A Portrait of a Non-Athletic Triathlete

By Topper Hilary JM

For those who have ever thought they were too old or too unfit to compete in a triathlon, From Couch Potato to Endurance Athlete will prove that it is never too late to compete! This is a story about overcoming life's obstacles- from injury and business trouble to grief and loss and everything in between. Hilary Topper was a 48-year-old working mother who once upon a time had practically failed high school gym class. She was working 60-plus hours a week, running a small business. Her focus was on others-her children, her aging parents, and her staff. In the meantime, her weight kept increasing, and she was unhappy with the way her life was going. She needed a change. To turn things around, she joined a gym for the first time in her life. This book will take the reader on Hilary's decade-long journey as she trains for and runs her first 5K, swims the aqua-blue waters of the Caribbean, cycles a hilly course in Milwaukee, learns how to run-walk her way through the New York City Marathon, and competes in her first triathlon in Sanibel, Florida. The reader will be right with Hilary as she narrates each experience-even a 5-mile swim in the murky waters of Long Island.

Big Apple Gangsters

The Rise and Decline of the Mob in New York

By Sussman Jeffrey

The great founding figures of organized crime in the 20th century were born and bred in New York City, and the city was the basis of their operations. Beginning with Prohibition and going on through many illegal activities the mob became a major force and its tentacles reached into virtually every enterprise, whether legal or illegal: gambling, boxing, labor racketeering, stock fraud, illegal unions, prostitution, food service, garment manufacturing, construction, loan sharking, hijacking, extortion, trucking, drug dealing - you name it the mob controlled it. The men who organized crime in America were the sons of poor immigrants. They were hungry for success and would use whatever means available to achieve their goals. They were not interested in religious identity and ethnic identity. Their syndicate of criminals was made up, primarily of Italians and Jews, but also Irish and black gangsters who could further their ambitions. Their sole objective was always the same - money. It began with Arnold Rothstein, who not only helped to fix the 1919 World Series, but who also mentored and financed the individuals who would control organized crime for decades

Outside Chance (Don't Doubt the Rainbow 2)

By Kessel Anthony

One evening Edie is babysitting for a neighbour, Donna, who has repeatedly caught sight of an estranged friend from overseas. What is troubling Donna, however, is that it seems she's been in the same place at the same time as this friend on several occasions over the past few days. At Donna's request, Edie investigates these apparent coincidences, using a combination of investigative work and conversations with her rabbi (who is tutoring Edie in preparation for her bat mitzvah) about the nature of fatalism and determinism. Meanwhile, Edie's school friend Harry Coranger is suspicious of his stepfather, who has become involved with ultra-radical anti-capitalists who, furious at the state of the planet and its greed-fuelled decline, are plotting an audacious double atrocity: a bombing and a hijacking. When Harry bizarrely disappears, Edie becomes embroiled in trying to find him and, ultimately, foil the terrorists' plans. Utilising her brave instincts and skills as a supersleuth for hire, Edie sets about resolving and averting the mysteries and crises that she is confronted with as she comes to realise that things often happen outside of chance, and outside of our understanding and control.

The Five Clues (Don't Doubt The Rainbow 1)

By Anthony Kessel

The first book in the series, The Five Clues, is a real-time murder-mystery thriller and family drama, combining an exciting race against time with a heart-rending story about a teenager learning to live with the loss of a beloved parent. Walking back from her mother's grave, 13-year-old schoolgirl Edie Marble finds a note in a pocket of the sheepskin coat that she hasn't worn since the day, a year earlier, when she received the awful news of her mother's death. The note is from her mother, who had been looking into a corporate human rights violation and had become fearful for her life after receiving death threats. She trusts only Edie - because of their special bond and Edie's intelligence - and has laid a trail of clues for Edie to find that will help her to shed light on the violation and uncover the mystery around her death. Through her wit and determination, Edie steadily gathers evidence and negotiates the dramatic twists and turns of the story by collaborating with her friends and family to gradually unearth a sinister attempt by a pharmaceutical company to conceal their illegal development of a lethal virus.

Rosalind Looked Closer

Gerin Lisa

The story of a persistent woman whose research in molecular biology changed the world. As a Jewish girl in England, Rosalind Franklin grew up against the backdrop of World War II. Fascinated with the natural world, as well as the invisible world that she could only see through her microscope, Rosalind developed a passion for science during a time when few women were recognized for their contributions to the field. Despite her father's discouragement, Rosalind studied chemistry at Cambridge University and went on to study the molecular structure of carbons and DNA molecules. As a scientist, she learned a new technique called X-ray diffraction to take photos of molecular structures. With this technique she captured an image of DNA that was unlike any other image that had been seen before. She saw an image of a helix made up of repeating strands of DNA. It was mesmerizing. This was what the DNA double helix looked like up-close--one of the most important findings of the 20th century.
